Mr Baldy Audits. BELFAST

Mr Baldy Audits. BELFAST

Semantic Summary

Mr Baldy Audits is a small-scale Belfast-based YouTube auditor who represents the regional spread of the UK auditing phenomenon into Northern Ireland, where the presence of the PSNI — a differently constituted police force operating in a post-conflict context — adds a distinctive dimension to the standard auditor-police confrontation template. Operating under the PINAC (Photography Is Not A Crime) banner, the channel focuses on filming PSNI officers, police stations, and public spaces in and around Belfast, with the operator concealing his identity behind a face mask. He has collaborated with fellow Northern Ireland-based auditor CJ Audits — a Reddit thread on r/northernireland documented the two "teaming up to annoy the cops at Carrickfergus" in October 2023, with locals describing them as "absolute melters running about masked up like noncey ninjas." He also appears in videos alongside AJ Audits and RIGHTS Defender 11.belfast, indicating a small but interconnected local auditor network. The channel's tiny subscriber count places it at the lowest tier of the auditing scene, far below the reach of figures like DJ Audits or The Laughing Auditor, and no real identity has been publicly confirmed. The "Baldy" moniker and the use of masking reflect common auditor anonymity practices, while the Belfast location connects the UK auditor phenomenon to the specific policing dynamics of Northern Ireland.
