Semantic Summary

Paul Christopher Dunbar, operating as DP Audits from Coventry, is a far-right YouTube auditor whose content has been shared by Tommy Robinson and who was documented by Searchlight Magazine sending rape threats to a pro-refugee campaigner's wife and daughters. His channel posts audits of police, migrant hotels, and street disorder — including a Glasgow trip filming "crackheads" and begging gangs where he was exposed for deceptive filming techniques. Dunbar features prominently in Byline Times' April 2026 investigation into the far-right auditor network, which revealed he posted pornographic images in a Discord server run by BBA's Scott Chesterman, his primary collaborator. His local reputation in Coventry includes a criminal record for violent offences and domestic violence, with residents describing him as having "no job, no friends and no life." His content being shared by Tommy Robinson — with Dunbar responding "Respect for sharing Tommy" — directly connects him to the highest-profile figure in the UK far-right ecosystem. Dunbar exemplifies the pipeline from personal grievance and criminality to monetised anti-migrant content, and the networked nature of the auditor scene where BBA, DP Audits, and the wider Discord-based community share both content and misogynistic material under the cover of "citizen journalism."
