Semantic Summary

Chris Messenger, operating as EnglishNed from the Ellesmere Port/Liverpool area, is described by Searchlight Magazine as a "well-known figure on the fascist 'auditor' scene" and "racist Liverpool auditor" with approximately 42,400 YouTube subscribers. His content covers right-wing protests, street auditing, and counter-protest coverage, frequently collaborating with Charlie Veitch and appearing alongside veteran fascists Callum Barker, Julian Leppert, and Young Bob while canvassing for Restore Britain in Makerfield. He was one of six auditors arrested and charged following April 2026 Manchester police raids, alongside MKR Audits (Kelsea-Leigh Cunliffe), My Brakes Don't Work (Rachel Davies), and others. Searchlight photographed him throwing a punch during an attack on Green MP Hannah Spencer in Manchester, and documented him attempting to force entry to a Stop The War meeting. He was the primary photograph accompanying Searchlight's June 2026 investigation into the far-right turning on auditor "grasses" whose footage is used in criminal prosecutions. Messenger is networked within the Mancunian auditor cluster documented by HOPE not hate — alongside The Ginger Patriot (Ben Mills), MKR Audits, and My Brakes Don't Work — and his Restore Britain activism connects him to the ethno-nationalist faction that includes Hugh Anthony and Steve Laws.

Searchlight "Auditor Grasses" Investigation (June 2026)

Messenger was featured as the primary photograph accompanying Searchlight Magazine's investigation "'Stop filming us' – why the far right is turning on auditor 'grasses'" (10 June 2026), which documented the growing backlash against auditors whose footage is being used as evidence to prosecute far-right rioters. The article highlighted how auditors' greed for viral content is handing police ready-made evidence and landing their "comrades" in prison.
